May 2017

2017 Sponsorship Prospectus

THE LANGUAGE

Born in 2011, Crystal is an open-source object-oriented programming language, with a Ruby-inspired syntax, static type-checking with inference, easy-to-write C-bindings, and powerful macros, that compiles to efficient native code.

THE EVENT

Crystal is headed to San Francisco!

The first official Crystal Language CodeCamp will be held in San Francisco, May 2017. It will be a 2 day event with the presence of the core team behind the language.

Activities:

- Language features overview session
- Two days of hands-on training:
 - Exercises to delve on language concepts, including its type system, macros, and C-bindings
 - Practical exercises on real-life scenarios, from a simple CLI to a full-scale web application, plus development of a Crystal library (aka Shard)
 - Optional exercises on alternative use-cases, such as building apps for ARM or Ruby extensions
- Lunch and coffee breaks
- Networking session
- Closing keynote on the state of Crystal

Up-to-date agenda available on <https://codecamp.crystal-lang.org/>

WHY SPONSOR?

There are many benefits to becoming a sponsor of the first Crystal CodeCamp:

- Become part of the fast growing Crystal community
- Targeted marketing opportunities
- Talent acquisition and recruitment
- Brand awareness and recognition

Most important: Crystal is an open source language supported Manas.Tech, its community and its BountySource sponsors. All proceeds obtained from this event will be destined to Crystal development.
